DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okawa et al (US 5,591,906) in view of Sharp (US 5,569,848) and Jackson et al (US 6,237,234).

As per claim 1-3, Okawa teaches a system of determining tire pressure faults in a vehicle, the system comprises: determining the number of tire revolution of a first and second tire (col.4, lines 10-11); comparing the number of revolutions of the first and second tire using the ratio between the tires to determine if pressure fault has occurred (col.4, lines 10-26). Okawa does not suggest using distance value for the comparison. However, Okawa teaches using rotational angular velocity value (col.4, lines 10-11), further since Sharp teaches that it is well known to determine distance from the rotation angular speed using an odometer, and there is a close relation between the rotation angular speed and distance (col.4, lines 18-61), and Jackson teaches specific relationship between distance travel and the angular speed (col.4, lines 55-59), it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the distance determined from the wheel rotational speed taught by Sharp and Jackson to determine the tire pressure abnormality of Okawa in order to use the same output distance determined from the odometer to check for the pressure fault of the wheels, since utilizing the distance determined from the number of pulses output from a sensor in a fixed amount of time, or utilizing the number of pulses outputted from the speed sensor as preferred by the designer requires only routine skill in the art.

As per claim 4-6, refer to claims 1-3 above.

As per claim 7, Okawa teaches coupling the sensors to an ABS system (col.3, lines 63-67).
